Let’s Talk About It
Parenting

By Yvette Tello

We all want a better tomorrow for our children. We want them to do better than we did and have more than we have ever had. Some parents think college is the only way they can do accomplish this. What do you want for your children and how do you expect them to accomplish this? Trade school? Hard work? Apprenticeship? College? Let’s talk about it...

Kelli Arguello: “I think whatever makes them happy and they can support themselves then they should do it. I support whatever decision they make. College is not for everyone. There is no right or wrong answer to this question. It’s hard because we want them to have it all. I pray that my husband and I have raised them right.”

Argentina Caudillo Faberle: “My son graduated last year and I’m pushing for college because I do feel that’s the only way. I sometimes don’t know what to feel because I want him to be happy but I want so much for him. He is my first baby so I want to lead him in the right direction...I always hear what a good young man he is and I take it as assurance that I did something right so far. I pray that he always makes right decisions.

Noel Tello: “College does open more doors and gives one better choices. However, work ethic is taught at home. Growing up, my family never taught me to plan for a career, just to work. I always tell my boys, “anyone can get a job,” “do something you love a make it a career. I’ve always told my wife, if my boys wanna work off a garbage truck and it makes them happy, then so be it. But I’m gonna make sure they’re educated garbage men. No one can take their education away.”

Sherry Hilton Vargas: “My son (23 now) tried the college route but it wasn’t for him so he went to a trade school and loved it because it was very hands on. My daughter (15 now) has her sights set on going to A&M to study large animal biology (so she can work with large animal rescues and African sanctuaries) and is working hard to accomplish this goal. My youngest (8yrs) wants to be in the military then study to be a science teacher (and maybe an astronaut). I think each person is different and college is not always the best fit for everyone. Kids now days are pushed to go to college so a lot of the trades are suffering from a lack of trained workers. Also, a lot of college graduates are unable to get work in their job field because it is so saturated with graduates with the same degrees. Unless it is a very specific degree jobs will be hard to find for graduates. I will support my children in whatever route they choose. I want them to be happy without undue stress of doing something that is not making them happy.”

Joanna Rodriguez: “I want my children to be educated but I do not want them to start their life out with debt. I struggle to pay my student loans and take care of them. I don’t want them to know this stress.”

Denise Gonzalez: “My son is an artist. College can’t teach him what the school of life will teach him. He needs to be able to express himself. College does not allow for that. When he told me school wasn’t for him, I supported his decision.”

About the Artist

Juan de Dios Mora

By Ricardo Romo

Juan de Dios Mora is a native of Yahualica, Jalisco, Mexico who emigrated with his family to the United States at age 14. His parents settled in Laredo, Texas where they found employment in the service industries, mainly working in hotels and restaurants. No one in the family spoke English when they arrived in Texas and young Mora started school in ESL classes.

Mora learned English quickly and developed a passion for painting and sports. He participated in track and soccer and his initial goal in life was to become a coach. However, he also excelled in painting and by the time he had completed his degree at Martin High School in Laredo in 2003, he had decided to study art. He enrolled in art classes at Laredo Community College and Texas A&M International University. He transferred to The University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA) in 2007 and enrolled in painting and drawing classes.

Upon completing his UTSA Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in 2009 with an emphasis in painting, he enrolled in the Master of Fine Arts program specializing in Printmaking. With two degrees from UTSA, he received an offer to teach printmaking in the art department at UTSA as a Senior Lecturer.

Mora concentrates in the relief printmaking technique to create narratives of Mexican-American experiences. Mora credits his experiences living along the border (US and Mexico) with providing an awareness of social and political concepts that heavily influence his artistic, aesthetic and conceptual ideas. Themes reflected in his work include immigration, community life, culture, mythology, and family.

Mora has been included in exhibitions across the United States, Mexico, and Japan. Venues featuring his work include McNay Contemporary Arts Museum; National Museum of Mexican Art, Chicago, IL; El Paso Museum of Art, El Paso, TX; Museo de Arte de Ciudad Juárez, Mexico; and Kyoto Municipal Museum, Japan.

Mora’s art prints have been acquired by The University of Texas Austin Benson Latin American Collection, Jordan Schnitzer Museum of Art, Oregon; The McNay Contemporary Art Museum, San Antonio, Texas; University of Houston Downtown Campus; University of Hawaii at Hilo, Hilo, Hawaii; National Museum of Mexican Art, Chicago, Illinois; Saint Phillips’ College, San Antonio, Texas, and The Smithsonian American Art Museum, Washington, DC.

El Centro Nacional de Recursos para la Trata de Personas (NHTRC) define la trata de personas como “una forma de esclavitud moderna en la que los traficantes usan la fuerza, el fraude o la coerción para controlar a las víctimas con el fin de participar en actos sexuales comerciales o servicios laborales contra su persona”. lo hará”. Hoy, la trata de personas es uno de los temas de derechos humanos más importantes de nuestro tiempo, con víctimas que abarcan todas las etnias, géneros, edades y niveles de ingresos en los Estados Unidos.

San Antonio se ha convertido en un área clave para los traficantes y las víctimas, ya que alberga dos de las carreteras más transitadas, los corredores I-35 e I-10, que son las principales vías de transporte ilegal y tráfico de hombres, mujeres y niños. La I-35 se extiende desde Laredo y termina en Minnesota, con conexiones a Canadá. La I-10 se extiende desde California hasta Florida, que es el corredor interestatal más grande de la nación y el corredor de tráfico sexual más activo de todo el país.

Un estudio del Departamento de Salud y Servicios Humanos de EE. UU. Concluyó que el 25 por ciento de las víctimas de la trata de personas del país se encuentran en Texas. Esto no es solo a nivel internacional, sino también un problema local.

“No cometer errores; El tráfico de personas y sexo está ocurriendo aquí en el condado de Bexar, a los residentes del condado de Bexar, por los residentes del condado de Bexar, para los residentes del condado de Bexar. Necesitamos involucrarnos y aumentar la conciencia pública para avanzar hacia el fin de este ciclo malicioso”, dijo la concejal Viagran.”

Esta es una forma moderna de esclavitud, y les pido a los residentes de nuestra Ciudad que conozcan las señales del tráfico de personas, y informar cualquier actividad sospechosa “.

Cada año, miles de mujeres, niños y hombres son víctimas de la trata de personas. Todos pueden desempeñar un papel en la identificación de víctimas de la trata de personas visitando el sitio web de la Línea directa nacional de trata de personas, donde pueden conocer las señales de la trata, obtener información sobre los tipos de trata y familiarizarse con la línea directa.

Para solicitar ayuda o denunciar la sospecha de trata de personas, llame al Centro Nacional de Recursos para la Trata de Personas (NHTRC), que funciona las 24 horas, los 7 días de la semana, al 1-888-373-788 o envíe mensaje de texto con la palabra “ayuda” al 233733. También se puede llegar por correo electrónico a nivel local: PDSexCrimes.Unit@sanantonio.gov o llame a la unidad de delitos sexuales en el 210-207-2313, de lunes - viernes entre las 7:45 am y las 17:45. Excerpts of the State of Houston’s Latinx Art 2019
Prepared by the Mayor’s Hispanic Advisory Board Arts Committee & The Latino Legacy Arts Groups Coalition

By Tony Diaz, Co-chair
Originally published for Nuestra Palabra: Latino Writers Having Their Say

This is the second State of Houston’s Latinx Art Report. The 2018 State of Houston’s Latinx Art report established the need to advocate for equitable and sustainable funding for Latinx Art. This paved the way for a focused campaign during 2019 and resulted in the promotion of major Latinx art projects, saving the TBH Theatre from closure, and cultivating the Cultural Capital of the Latinx Art Community.

The purpose of these reports is to quantify our Community’s Cultural Capital and to chart a course for building. Although our Community has always been concerned about our stories, our Art, our networks, we have never had all of the tools in place to act on our concerns and advocate for our interests. That has changed.

The State of Latinx Art 2019 report reveals that the one-year campaign inspired by the 2018 report was not long enough to dramatically alter the funding structure for Latino Arts groups, primarily through the Hotel Occupancy Tax contract, renewed for five years in December of 2012.

However, funding for Houston Latino Art did increase though Mayor Sylvester Turner’s efforts, and we have acquired landmark support and allies, which can fuel our Community Cultural Capital for the next phase of advocating for equitable and sustainable funding. This must take the form of a 3-year plan that can have a transformative effect and leads to a 6-year plan that cement Houston’s Latino Art Legacy.

This is powerful.

Dangers:

We are at a crossroads. There is a basis for optimism, but if we do not plan and act now, there will be grave consequences. If we do not as a city coalesce to further the progress of Latinx Art and Culture, we will face a crisis.

We must acknowledge that this year we witnessed the death of a Legacy Latino Arts nonprofit—Talento Bilingue de Houston. That was the 501c3 organization that operated the TBH Theatre.

Houston will suffer if it claims to be a diverse city, yet tourists can’t find Latinx Art by Houstonians. If “diversity” is simply a slogan, it will be easier for visitors to find the Tex Mex food than Chicano Art.

Mainstream arts organizations can’t satisfy the needs, demands, and interests of Houston’s Latino population, which is currently quantified at 45% and may exceed 50% after the next census. They need locally grown, and Latino “owned” arts nonprofits to work with them. They must prosper together.

We must end the “talent drain” of brilliant individuals who can’t cultivate careers for Art in our city. That has a profound long-term effect on our Community’s Cultural Capital.

Latinos know when they are being catered too in a strictly commercial transaction because they are marketed to regularly, but their history, culture, and intellect is appealed to profoundly by Latino arts groups.

Great examples:

The Alley Theatre has shown a significant commitment to developing an authentic exchange of Community Cultural Capital. Like several of the larger and mid-size mainstream organizations, they have added Latino programming to their line up. Additionally, they have hired a Latino outreach person, and they have created a Latino Advisory Committee, which I am proud to sit on. These are all vital initial steps that should be followed by other groups, but these are also preliminary steps.

Allies – Community Cultural Capital:

Mayor Turner was a major ally in this campaign. He met extensively with our committees and renewed his commitment to Latino Art. He inherited the HOT contract, and his administrationoversaw some significant changes to the agreement, some of which were addressed in the 2018 State of Latinx Art Report. His administration also oversaw $1MM in additional funding for Latino Arts and Culture, in addition to supporting Latino Art Now 2019, and providing an $80,000 grant on short notice - to keep the TBH Theatre open during Hispanic Heritage Month and to commit to reconvening to chart a long term plan for Latino Art and Culture. This is a potent alliance. No previous mayor has been as deeply involved with the Latino Arts Community.

This column highlights inspiring stories of Latino leaders. For more than 500 years, Latino men and women have positively influenced the face of United States society. Let us celebrate these outstanding hispanics.

Linda Ronstadt
Born in 1946 in Tucson, Arizona, Linda Ronstadt dropped out of college to pursue singing. Her career took off when she went solo in 1974. Two years later, she earned her first Grammy Award for Best Female Pop Performer and her second the following year for Best Female Vocal Performer. During the ‘80s, she began experimenting with different styles of music and consequently earned a Grammy for Best Country Performance. Exploring her Latina roots, she recorded “Canciones de mi Padre” which went gold and, in 1992, was honored with two Grammy Awards: one for Best Mexican American Album for “Mas Canciones” and the second for Best Tropical Latin Album for “Frenesi.” Few performers have matched Ronstadt’s versatility as a singer.

Los Spurs Desean a San Antonio un próspero 2020

Fanaticada de Spurs, deseó al equipo todo lo mejor en el resto de la temporada

Por José I. Franco

El pentacampeón equipo (de la NBA), Spurs de San Antonio con su variado roster ha venido cumpliéndole a la noble afición del sur de Texas, sosteniéndose en buen escaño (entre el octavo sitio), en la elite de la competitiva Conferencia del Oeste.

Spurs con la dirección de 22 años consecutivos, del estratega Gregg Popovich, a pesar que en esta temporada NBA 2019-2020 no ha mostrado ser el triunfador equipo que por varias temporadas fue el líder en la división del medio oeste y de conferencia (Oeste), no lleva prisa porque se encuentra dando oportunidades a destacados prospectos y novatos, que de acuerdo al sistema de juego de Popovich, por su cuenta irán sobresaliendo en su plan de juego.

La base de seguidores y el timonel en jefe (Popovich), durante su partido (en la víspera del año nuevo), contra el duro visitante rival Golden West Warriors (que a pesar de no tener en su alineación a sus jugadores estelares Stephen Curry y Klay Thompson), que se encuentra en rehabilitación por lesiones musculares, agradecieron el apoyo de la comunidad del sur de Texas, deseándoles un próspero 2020. La fanaticada en recintos mediante la transmisión por circuito cerrado alusiva a su slogan “Spurs Family Roll Call”, respondió de la misma forma, convocando a la afición al canto tradicional de “Go Spurs Go”. Warriors sin embargo, tuvo excelente representación en las gradas con seguidores que vistieron sus colores.

Cabe mencionar que el partido entre Warriors ante 18,354 espectadores y el anfitrión Spurs, se empató en tiempo regular con marcador de 110-110, jugándose cinco minutos de tiempo extra con mejor suerte para Spurs, que ganó con pizarra de 117-113 puntos.

Spurs con marca de 14 victorias y 18 derrotas, en cinco partidos disputados en “tiempo extra/overtime”, ha obtenido cuatro victorias, con derrota ante Cavaliers, que se encuentra en el último escaño de la Conferencia del Este (No.15).

Los Spurs para cerrar con broche de oro su agenda en 2019, hizo espectacular reconocimiento diversas organizaciones, en su respectivo talento artístico y cultural entre artistas locales, y organizaciones sin fines de lucro del sur de Texas.

En el partido contra Warriors, se contó con la exclusiva participación de la Harlingen Orchestra, dirigida por el maestro Ronnie Rios, quien tuvo el apoyo del trio femenil de cantantes independientes Gabby Garza, Aaron Blount y Gabby Garza. Además de la escolta militar “4th Reconnaissance Battalion”.

“Nos sentimos orgullosos porque se nos dio la oportunidad de venir a participar en la ceremonia del Himno Nacional, con la participación de los elementos que conforman la orquesta y el trio de chicas interpretes Gabby Garza, Aaron Blount y Gabby Garza, dos vocalistas con el mismo nombres, quienes dieron realce al estilo musical de nuestra orquesta que vino a darlo todo por dejar en buen lugar a la región fronteriza que representamos”, dijo Rios.

La participación de la orquesta en mencion fue canalizada entre el departamento de ventas y el profesor Rios, quien dijo haber cumplido con los requisitos que les exigió la representante de ventas de los Spurs, Miren Zubilaga. “Enviamos nuestro repertorio y ello bastó para que fuese aprobada nuestra participación para encabezar la ceremonia del Himno Nacional”, indicó Rios. Por su parte Chuck Cureau, conductor principal de eventos y promociones en los partidos locales de San Antonio, dijo sentirse emocionado, porque la actuación de la orquesta visitante, realizó una maravillosa presentación de su excelente talento artístico y musical. “De maravilla fue la interpretación del Himno Nacional, por parte de Harlingen Orchestra. Digna de aplaudirse y reconocerle su inolvidable presentación”, apuntó Cureau.

Los más de 18 mil espectadores dieron emotiva ovación y buenos deseos a la orquesta en mención, lo cual inspiró a los jugadores, que a la par lucharon hasta el último minuto del tiempo jugado que fue de 2 horas con 24 minutos en los que sobresalieron anotando 17 unidades en tiempo extra, superando a Warriors del ex Spur Steve Kerr (entrenador en jefe de Warriors), que con 13 puntos concedió la derrota. Latinos Can Find Benefits From Art and Music

By Dr. Ricardo Romo

Latinos benefit by engaging in the arts, and not just for the obvious reasons of enjoying beauty and creativity. In many Latino communities we too often celebrate the arts and music largely as spectators in seasonal social activity such as Fiesta, Dia de los Muertos [Day of the Dead], or a Mariachi serenade for a birthday event. It turns out, this is not enough if we desire a longer and happier life. A recent scientific study has found that museums and music concerts are actually good for our very survival.

In a January New York Times article, “Going to Museums May Be Good for Your Health,” Maria Cramer cited a new British study that found that “simply being exposed to the arts may help people live longer.” British researchers “also noted that engaging in the arts can reduce loneliness, promote empathy and emotional intelligence, and keep people from becoming sedentary—all factors that contribute to a longer life.”

I am a big fan of museums—but I only started going to museums after graduating from college. Growing up in San Antonio during the 50s and 60s my leisure time was limited to going to the movies and weekend school dances. On our few school field trips in elementary school we explored a deep cavern, climbed Roundtop Mountain, and went to the fabled Playland. But never to a museum or music concert. That has changed today, and for the better. Whenever I visit the Witte Museum, Institute of Texan Cultures, McNay Museum of Contemporary Arts, Briscoe Western Art Museum, or San Antonio Museum of Art, I am likely to find school buses lined up near the entrances. But more has to be done by these museums to attract Latino adults, especially those of ages 50 and over. The British scholars noted that a sense of purpose in life is important and “being involved and excited by the arts keeps and maintains your purpose in life.”

Over the past five years the McNay Museum of Contemporary Arts has stepped up celebrating Latino art. Their art exhibits have featured solo exhibitions by Cesar Martinez, Kathy Vargas, and Michael Menchaca. In addition the Romo Collection was utilized for the Estampas de la Raza [61 prints], Richard Duardo “Pop Art” [20 prints], Juan De Dios Mora [20 prints] and Las Chicanas [25 prints] exhibits. The latter was recognized by the Smithsonian as one of the ten exhibits in America to see in 2019. Most urban scholars define great cities by their economic activity, manufacturing base, transportation infrastructure, excellent hospitals and schools, and great parks—New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles come to mind. But these cities recruit a steady influx of highly educated workers, and these workers also want assurance that their communities will support universities that offer post graduate degrees, public recreational facilities, green spaces, museums, public libraries, and music events.

A defining moment in San Antonio’s aspirations for recognition as a “great city” came in March of 1983 when San Antonio received recognition as an “All American City.” Everyone, including The New York Times credited Mayor Henry Cisneros’ leadership in achieving that distinction. I had the opportunity to have lunch with Secretary Cisneros last week and while much of the conversation focused on the pending international crisis, we got around to talking about one of his main passions—music. I mentioned the British study reported in The New York Times and he smiled because Secretary Cisneros has always enjoyed music and attends concerts in San Antonio and New York City where one of his companies is located.

We are learning from British scholars that art and music keeps us engaged, and fulfills the need for an inner peace and relaxation. Participating in art and music events and can be a contributor to a longer life. Knowing that art and music are good for our health, will city leaders step up to increase funding for arts and humanities? Will more San Antonians from all parts of the city participate in concert events and attend museums? I certainly hope so.

The American GI Forum of the US Condemns the Hit and Run of Natalia Miranda Because She was a Mexican

By Lawrence Romo

Nicole Marie Poole Franklin (Franklin), 42 years old, deliberately with her vehicle ran over Natalia Miranda, 14 years old, in Iowa on December 9, 2019. Franklin was apprehended by the police and was charged with a hit and run. Franklin stated, “She hit her because she was a Mexican.” Franklin then made a series of derogatory statements about Latinos, stated the police. Natalia was unconscious for 49 minutes and she sustained bruises, as well as, a concussion. It is a miracle that Natalia was not killed. In addition, Franklin has also been charged with another attempted murder when she hit a 12-year-old African-American boy, on the same day she hit Natalia.

The American GI Forum of the US (AGIF-US) condemns this act by Franklin and will not tolerate any hate crimes. The AGIF-US demands that Franklin be charged with a hate crime and felony applicable charges, not limited to attempted murder. The AGIF-US calls on all of our citizens to respect one another and to be sensitive with the verbal abuse use. Words have consequences and all individuals need to watch what they say. Governmental and community leaders need to set the proper example for others to emulate and set positive standards of etiquette. When individuals incite hateful language to degrade a particular ethnic, religious, LGBTQIA individuals or groups that differ from them or with a disability, this sends a message to all citizens of acceptance. Hate groups and individuals then feel empowered to commit hate crimes like the shootings in El Paso, the Charleston Black Church and this recent attack on Natalia. This is unacceptable and we must all do our part to stop this violence!

Chartered by Congress 1998, the AGIF-US is a Congressionally Chartered Veterans Family Organization that advocates for our military, veterans, civil and equal rights and educational access for all since 1948.

Mentorship in any field is fantastic and San Anto Cultural Arts (SACA) is providing a multidisciplinary approach for art and community leadership at its After School Arts Program (ASAP).

This program is continuously enrolling students from age 7-18. The after school program is hosted from Monday- Friday from 4pm to 6pm at San Anto Cultural Arts, located in the heart of the inner west side.

Youth program coordinator, MidNite Flortiz, said all students will begin with basic art course knowledge like color theory, lines and composition and then choose a direction in a specific art medium.

Flortiz described the introduction classes as a, “free for all art exploration,” where the students are immersed in various mediums so they can design their own path. Whether it’s painting, drawing, writing, crafting, poetry, illustration, photography, sculpting, graphic design, comic book printing, anime or copy editing, ASAP, has the students covered.

Students will then graduate into different levels of their art targets, ultimately being a part of the professional mural team or being trained to become a mentor in another subject.

Students can participate with the production of the EL PLACAZO COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER or the comic book club and the JR mural team.

“Everything is in the kids hands,” said Flortiz, “[JR Muralists] set up their own unveiling, do their own press, create their own designs and paint.”

The program has empowered some of the youngest muralists in the city, completing public art on their own as young as 10 and 11 years old.

In addition to arts training, students will learn how to sell their art by developing price formats and selling their prints at First Friday.

Three new murals from this program will be produced this spring and Flortiz expects many more as SACA is bombarded by community requests for their designs. There is a capacity of 20 students in each class, but since the program is on a revolving schedule, there will be room in different mediums. Students must be 7-18 years old, but some exceptions are made for younger students with advanced skills. Parents can register students by calling, emailing...

1908-1915

- September 27, 1915. (San Antonio, Texas). Respective South Texas Community leaders Jesus Bazan and his son-in-law Hidalgo County Commissioner Antonio Longoria are murdered by Texas Ranger Henry Ransome and two other nameless Anglos. On the day noted above both Bazan and Longoria travelled to a Texas Ranger camp located on the Sam Lane Ranch to report a horse robbery. Once they completed their report and left on horseback, ranch workers witnessed Ranger Captain Henry Ransome and two other men follow them in a Model T Ford. One of the passengers identified as Ransome shot both Bazan and Longoria in the back causing them to fall on the side of the road. According to the Texas Historical Marker information later placed at the site, noted the Ranger and two other men were unfazed by the shootings and returned to the Lane Ranch to take a nap. This murderous act was never investigated, explained or reported.

- 1917. On January 17, 1917, the stated objectives of the revolutionary Plan de San Diego were again outlined in a telegram sent by the German Foreign Minister to Germany’s minister in Mexico.

- The infamous “Zimmerman Telegram” read: “We intend to begin unrestrictive submarine warfare on the first of February. We shall endeavor in spite of this to keep the United States neutral. In the event of this not succeeding, we make Mexico a proposal of alliance on the following basis: make war together, generous financial support, and an understanding on our part that Mexico is to re-conquer the lost territory in Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona. The settlement in detail is left to you. You will inform the President (Mexico) of the above most secretly as soon as the outbreak of war with the United States is certain and add the suggestion that he should, on his own initiative, invite Japan to immediate adherence and at the same time mediate between Japan and ourselves. Please call the President’s attention to the fact that the unrestrictive employment of our submarines now offers the prospect of compelling England to make peace within a few months. Acknowledge receipt. - Zimmerman

The message was first sent to the German Ambassador, Bernstorff in Washington, DC and then forwarded to the Ambassador in Mexico, Eckhardt. Mexican President Venustiano Carranza responded on April 14, 1917 to advise them of Mexico’s neutrality in the matter.

-1919. World War I: U.S. Army Private David B. (Cantu) Barkeley from Laredo, Texas received the Congressional Medal of Honor for his bravery and devotion to duty in France.

--1921. The “Orden de Hijos de America” is founded in San Antonio. The central purposes of the organization were social economic and political action to promote the rights and privileges of Mexican American citizens. The “Orden” took no partisan stand and confined itself to training its members for citizenship.

Por Sendero Deportivo
El plan de juego de los Spurs (encestes triples), les ha venido dejando buenos resultados ante equipos de la conferencia oeste y este. En víspera del año nuevo en su estadio AT&T Center, celebraron importante victoria en tiempo extra, ante Warriors de Golden State (dirigidos por Steve Keer, ex jugador de Spurs), con pizarra de 117-113 unidades. Posteriormente de nuevo en casa, San Antonio bajo el timón de Gregg Popovich, se cobraron derrota dominical (de visitantes en Milwaukee), contra los Bucks, que les propino derrota con marcador de 127-118. Spurs emparejó serie con espectacular pizarra de 126 a 104, encuentro aplaudido por 18,354 espectadores. Su victoria los puso dentro del octavo escaño en el oeste. "Tenemos que estar a la par entre los rivales que se han dedicado a realizar plan de juego defensivo con disparos triples. Por mi lado seguiré adelante con lo que el sistema de juego ha venido mandando en la liga (NBA). Así se dará la gran pelea por lo que resta de la temporada‘, indicó Aldridge.

De acuerdo al delantero estelar LaMarcus Aldridge, Spurs continuará con su arsenal lanzando disparos fuera del perímetro, ya que es la novedad en el circuito. "Spurs nos superó en la defensiva y ofensiva, además de que cuidaron cada posesión del balón. Aldridge, sigue encabezando la artillería (en triples), apoyando a sus compañeros, para que ellos también realicen tiros largos. DeRozan, nos sorprendió con su veloz estilo de juego llegando consistentemente al arco y pasando el esférico a sus compañeros”, indicó Bud. "Encestes triples nos han venido dando buenos resultados. Aldridge, sigue adelante enseñando su variado estilo de juego ofensivo y defensivo. Seguiremos trabajando en ese plan de juego y aprovechando cada oportunidad que se nos dé fuera del perímetro”, apuntó Mills. En las fotos aparecen Tim Duncan y David Robinson “The Admiral”, acompañando a David Stern, excomisionado de la NBA, quien pasó a mejor vida. La gerencia general el 2 de enero en partido ante Thunder de Oklahoma City, rindió minuto de silencio en tributo a la memoria (De Stern). “David Stern, es un ícono en la NBA, su trabajo fue excelente guiando a la liga a ser reconocida mundialmente”, dijo Popovich. Traders Village Present Cancer Kid-Inspired Cosplay team ‘Cap’s Crusaders’ with a Huge

By Brian A. Billeck

Saturday, January 11, 2020 at 1:00 pm located at the center of the market near the Helicopter Rides, Traders Village Marketing Manager Brian A. Billeck along with Rick Crover with Party Time Pictures will present Travis Manning (founder of Cap’s Crusaders) a check in the amount of $2,500. This money was raised from photos taken with Santa & Mrs. Claus last year. (shh....don’t tell them -- Cap’s Crusaders doesn’t know how much they are receiving)

During the Christmas Season, Traders Village featured Santa and his “Santa Express.” Children could stop by and visit with Santa & Mrs. Claus at the Traders Village Train Depot and receive a Golden Ticket to ride the Santa Express (our trackless train) for FREE. There were also photo packages from Party Time Pictures starting at $5 and only going up to $30. A portion of the proceeds would then go to Cap’s Crusaders Cos-play team.

“We are very excited to have raised this money for Cap’s Crusaders,” said Traders Village Marketing Manager Brian A. Billeck. “This hits home, my son Damon Billeck passed away April 3, 2018 from Osteosarcoma Bone Cancer. He was an inspiration to many in the community. He worked with the San Antonio Fire Department, multiple charity organizations and even spearheaded a project to donate a huge bell to the cancer patients at University Hospital. He was friends with actor Chris Evans and died a SAFD Hero. He also inspired a group of cosplayers to band together in his honor to help the San Antonio Community. That group is now called Cap’s Crusaders--named after their Captain America: Damon Billeck. To be able to help an organization that helps so many other families is so gratifying. Giving back to the community we serve is very important to us.”

Cap’s Crusaders is a local non profit founded founded on April 3rd, 2018 in honor and dedication to our captain Damon E. Billeck, Cap’s Crusaders is team motivated by the mission to spread happiness and hope to communities throughout central Texas while bringing awareness and support to organizations and individuals who are fighting disability and disease.

In the past I have been employed as a part-time Adjunct Instructor at the Alamo City College District (ACCD) located in the Edgewood School District. Housed on SW 40th Street in the former Lincoln Elementary School campus, ACCD took possession of the building and still offers a number of students with limited education, vocational skills and GED classes. Students came from the Westside and all parts of town to take classes on the campus seeking better employment opportunities with higher learning.

As one who spent a year in the Edgewood School District in the 80s at La Memoria High School, I am acutely aware of the need to provide those additional opportunities for many growing up in the Westside of town. It was exciting to say the least. For me it was a sort of reunion with the area in which I taught those many years ago. Imagine my surprise when I began my tenure at the ACCD campus expecting to teach a GED class and discovering my schedule had been changed to working as a support teacher for a class of nursing assistant students. Instead of GED, I was about to be exposed to the career path of someone wishing to work in a hospital, nursing home, in-home care, or a doctor’s office! My second surprise was learning that six of the eight students in the class were from Mexico and at various levels of English proficiency. My students were between the ages of 24 and 48. The youngest student was a skilled Nurse in Mexico and was training on her nursing assistant’s certification to be employed here in San Antonio. Part of my job as the support instructor was to create various worksheets by highlighting the various chapters in the student’s work books to make it easier to comprehend the material for tests. The best part of the class for me was the opportunity to practice along with the students the very skills taught by the nurse who was the lead teacher. A Licensed Vocational Nurse (LVN) for 34 years, Cynthia Ball was really proficient at what she did. Being an active part of the class, I took someone’s blood pressure, pulse, heartbeat, and oxygen level. For me it was a whole new world! I also learned how to properly drain a bedpan, how to give a partial sponge bath, help someone out of a bed into a wheelchair and clean a catheter. The students also practiced on me to sharpen their skills set as well. It is good to know on a consistent basis my vitals are consistently good considering my age! We even visited a nursing home on the campus of Incarnate Word University to shadow nursing assistants in their daily routine of administering to their residents. I received my Master’s Degree at Incarnate Word in the 70s. For me it was a new learning experience being a part of higher learning for others and me. Hopefully I will remember those skills when someday I find myself in one of those nursing facilities. But then again, what is the hurry?

As always, what I write is “Just a Thought.”
