Let’s Talk About It
Spike In Hate Crime Against Asian Community

By Yvette Tello

I overheard a conversation yesterday. “I think it is Trump who caused these massive hate crimes. First of all, Trump blamed China by calling the virus the “Kung Flu” “Asian Flu” And Even saying that “China created the virus.” Asian hate crimes have risen to 886% in 2020 alone.”

Do you think this is true? Let’s talk about it...

Lydia Curran: “Hell yes!”

Patrick Southard: “Who is committing these hate crimes? It’s pretty easy to figure out. Just look for the word “white” in the report. If you don’t see it, then it didn’t fit the media’s agenda so they excluded race.”

Richard Perez: “Here’s how I see it, and again just my personal opinion; Trump made some statements, the PRESS, magnified those remarks by consistently saying he was encouraging hate speech. Once a view is repeated 1000 times it becomes fact whether or not it’s the original intent. If you “Blame” Trump for the words you must “Blame” the press for the spreading and advocating of the hate. Even Hitler used Otto Dietrich and Joseph Goebbels. Without the power of the press, his words would not have had the same influence.”

Frank Burton: “Well it certainly didn’t help… He failed in his charge of leading the country as a unifying force for we the people and the fallout is just more proof.”

Carmen Madariaga: “PROPAGANDA! Just another smoke screen to distract from our eroding amend- ment rights under this "administration." The virus was in fact originated in China. That is a fact! It has nothing to do with race. It has to do with the depopulation agenda.”

Thomas Mc: “People who think Trump had no hand in this have no concept of the power of speech from a leadership position. Whether it was Hitler or Pol Pot, or Ghandi or Lee Iacocca, words matter and they will lead people, especially under-educated people in certain directions.

Jeff Hull: “No. I think he opened the door that allowed others to more freely express their hate and discrimination but its nothing new. Unfortunately these types of individu- als have always been around and have always treated immigrants as less than. If you got back to WWII. Japanese and Japanese Americans were put in encampments. So it’s nothing new. Trump just brought it out in the open.”

Katrina Wilson: “It’s all an ongo- ing issue that’s been going on too far and for too long. It’s time for people of color to be heard. It’s time for us to be seen as one instead of being categorized into a minority. My daughter will be raised Black/ Asian and proud. I refuse to let her live in fear and on edge because of her skin.”

Billy Violet: “Where have you been? This is not a new problem. I mean, I’m not even surprised by the incident at this point. This is the world we live in. White Supremacy reigns in America, and White Terror- ism is socially accepted.”

Seneca Cruz: “A majority of Asians I’ve encountered are usually some of the sweetest people I’ve ever met and so kind. This is very sad. I’m also extremely disturbed at how many people just looked on instead of helping them.”

Sean Meas: “Some of them assume all Asian are CHINESE. Why did they try to attack the new generation Asian? Bet that would be the last mistake they ever make in their life. Don't go out there and attack some old senior citizens.”

Sunita Kharkongor: “Believe it or not. Trump is behind all this.”

MJ Toom: “Let’s be honest, the racist people on Earth are Asian. Believe it or not 97% of them are racist. What happened days ago, that was very wrong against any race. However Asians should change the way they treat others. Stop acting innocent now.”

Stephanie Rude: “It sounds very much staged to create hatred. Demo- crats are good at creating divisions.”

Kevin Trief: “As quoted from a post: “I’m only here to tell you, we’re here, and we do speak, and we do support, we’re just not who you’re paying attention to because no one has paid attention to us. And that’s ok, we gotta learn how to stand on our own. If you support, I appreciate it with my entire heart and soul, and if you don’t because you feel resentment by the experi- ences you’ve had with Asian people, then that’s ok. I’m not mad at you for your experiences because that’s what happened to you to feel that way. I just ask you to see that not everyone is like that…” If you still feel some type of way about us Asians in general just because of what you’ve chosen to hear and not hear then that is okay. I am not here to start beef with you or talk stuff. Just trying to have you see the bigger picture. Like I said, Peace and One Love from me”

Gilbert Dimas Jr.: “He called it the China virus which is basically correct. Is it offensive for us to eat Chinese Candies? They are not made in China, they make your eyes slant cuz they are sour. How about labeling foods as chinese or mexican? Trump had every right to blame China! It originated there. When he tried to close travel, the democrats opposed even going as far as going to ChinaTown and saying the situation was not seri- ous. They opposed Trump until they figured out they could use it against him. And when the economy bounced back faster and better than any economist thought. They played it harder for bigger shutdowns. Only two states were on total lockdown. Both states in shambles. Who cares who said what or where? Focus on the criminals within the democratic party.”

Jerry Rowray: “I think all of this hate for Asian people comes from about 2% of people in this country. Unfortunately most epidemics seem to come from one area or the other. (Aids - Africa...Sars - Japan. What some people don't know is the last worldwide pandemic) the Spanish flu 1918 came from the same area of north China. haters will always hate in their own small minds.”

Darwin Walker: “Yes he is the cause of it.”

La Prensa Texas stands with our Asian family against the senseless attacks on their community. Racism and hate are pandemics that we all must fight to eradicate. It starts with listening to communities of color; planning and organizing to sup- port, speaking out about the prob- lems, and actively working on the solutions. We are in this together. Spread the love, stop the hate...

Continuing the Legacy: 25th Anniversary of the Cesar Chavez March for Justice

Video By Angel Contero
Transcribed by Celinda De La Fuente

March 29, 1997, San Antonio had the very first annual Cesar Chavez March. Saturday, March 27, 2021 San Antonio will proudly celebrate the 25th Anniversary of the Cesar E. Chavez March for Justice at 7pm via Facebook. Organized by Cesar E. Chavez Legacy & Education Foundation (CECLEF), an organization led by Ernest Martinez, son of Jaime P. Martinez who founded CECLEF, this is still a grassroots march belonging to the community. Beginning with less than 100 people in its first year, we’ve seen this event grow with powerful people walking the streets side-by-side con la gente such as: Dolores Huerta, Richard Chavez, brother of Cesar Chavez, Paul Chavez, son of Cesar Chavez, and Andres Chavez, grandson of Cesar Chavez.

Impacted by Covid-19, CECLEF had to pivot, and rearrange in order to keep everyone safe, while still honoring the legacy, thus shifting from an actual march to a televised event. This unique educational event will continue to uplift the spirit of La Causa, honoring the Farm Worker, the definition of today’s Essential Worker. We will be able to see people, places, and events, which shaped this march into what it is today. Video footage of the controversial Street Battle will also be available for your viewing pleasure. Performances by El Taller de America, Campanas de America, and Little Joe y La Familia will fill our hearts with la musica of our corazones. Poet Eddie Vega will grace us with palabras de fuego.

Ernest Martinez hopes that everyone comes with unity for one common purpose...one common goal, to lend their voice for social justice. And so, I leave you with the Unity Clap and Martinez’s favorite quote, “We cannot seek achievement for ourselves and forget about progress and prosperity for our community... Our ambitions must be broad enough to include the aspirations and needs of others, for their sakes and for our own.” Adelante.

Carne Guisada Tacos. Buffalo Chikn Mac. Frito Pie. Peaches N Creme Waffles. Pozole. Are you hungry yet? We are not done: Spirit-Free Cocktails. CBD or Delta-8 infused. Como to quieras. Located on the Southside at 5007 S Flores. Hash Vegan Eats is San Antonio’s first dry bar and vegan eatery. Wait...what? Vegan food? On the Southside? Brothers Rogelio and Michael Sanchez, owners of Hash Vegan Eats, are often confronted by this...conundrum, if you will, though it is their mission to make veganism and sobriety commonplace for their gente and their community, and not a question of confusion. Out of the tumultuous fires of personal addiction and alcoholism, now both 8 years sober and 7 years vegan, the Sanchez Brothers especially knew that options for the sober and recovery community were definitely lacking in their neighborhood and wanted to be the change...to be the light of the Southside, by uplifting others, creating unity, and making a new way of living, while continuing to support local businesses and their community in the process.

Nearly twelve years ago, Rogelio and Michael Sanchez lost their mother to cirrhosis of the liver; the real disease of addiction. Their grandfather also succumbed to her disease and passed away out of the ether around 12yrs ago. After her passing I dove head first into drugs & alcohol, destroying my life to the point that I was destroying all life around me. After years of trying I eventually came to the realization that I needed to change the world and make amends for the pain I had caused. Eventually, after 30 times of trying to get sober I was able to finally stay sober. What happens in the beginning stages of recovery is you almost need someone to circle around alcohol so much that everyday experiences often include being offered an alcoholic drink, which is an incredible trigger to people in recovery, especially someone fresh into recovery. With that in mind we wanted to create a space to facilitate that safe environment, because we feel that if this kind of space existed for us, our mother or anyone else struggling with addiction it could by default help save lives.

Q: Who are you guys? A: Rogelio G Sanchez (Sober 8yrs Vegan 7yrs) Michael R Sanchez (Sober 8yrs Vegan 7yrs) (OWNERS OF HASH VEGAN EATS)
We’re just 2 brothers from the southside. We grew up by SHIS in a very poverty stricken area. Both of our parents were drug dealers, addicts & alcoholics our entire childhood. Pre-covid we were event producers & have produced some of the biggest events in the city, including MICHELADA MADNESS, SA VEGFEST, YES FEST, TOUR DE JAH & PLANNING TO LAUNCH SIN-CARNE-VAL (post covid).

Q: Why did you go sober? A: We were alcoholics. It’s something that was passed down through generations in our family. Our grandfather & mother both passed away from it. Michael likes to say “alcohol ran in our family until it ran into us!” We have to break these generational curses by addressing the core root issues & that is dealing the systemic causes of drug & alcohol abuse. Systemic poverty & poor diet choices are often contributed to higher levels of addiction, domestic abuse and mental health issues that help perpetuate them. We have small outreach programs that we use to create a relationship with our community members, especially those who are houseless & need assistance. We truly believe that the power of outpouring love and compassion can change the world.

Q: What made you go vegan? A: Initially it was for my physical health. We’re both cyclists & quickly realized that our performance lagged when we ate meat as opposed to a plant based meal. Eventually our love and compassion for animals took president the more we learned about how our dietary choices dictated the factory farming industry. Really focusing on the reduction of animal suffering by not only eating vegan, but promoting veganism to the masses and underserved communities. Veganism is also much more sustainable than our current means of food production which wastes about 900 gallons of water to yield 1 lb of beef or a total of 6 months of showers. So backing the planet is one thing, but we just wanna reduce unnecessary harm to the environment & fellow earthlings.

Q: Why did you decide to open a non-alcoholic bar? A: As former alcoholics, we wanted to create a safe space for people in recovery, as well as the sober curious. However, we attract everyone with our delicious craft cocktails that you can infuse with CBD or DELTA-8 THC.

Q: What is CBD & DELTA-8? A: CBD & DELTA-8 are naturally forming cannabinoids in the HEMP plant. CBD is non-psychoactive & DELTA-8 is psychoactive. Both are 100% legal and useful in addressing different ailments such as stress, social anxiety, back pain, headaches, etc.

Q: Why did you choose to open on the Southside? A: As fellow Southsiders, we understand the importance of seeing your reflection in your community. As we grew up we noticed that we viewed the world differently & challenged cultural norms. Alcoholism, Sexism, homophobia & bad diet are ingrained in the hispanic community and it needs to be addressed. We believe people do better when they know better, they just need to be shown new options in a cool familiar environment. We just want to help start the healing process in the community.

Q: What inspired the concept? A: The idea to open a safe space for people in recovery or curious about sobriety came from the loss of our wonderful mother. She was an amazing human and lived a wild life. She expressed love relentlessly to everyone she came into contact with. While she was an extraordinary person, she dealt with past traumas by turning to drug & alcohol addiction. Eventually she succumbed to her disease and passed into the ether around 12yrs ago. After her passing I dove head first into drugs & alcohol, destroying my life to the point that I was living in my car out of a small backpack. Eventually, after 30 times of trying to get sober I was able to finally stay sober. What happens in the beginning stages of recovery is you almost need to become a recluse. The world around you is circled around alcohol so much that everyday experiences often include being offered an alcoholic drink, which is an incredible trigger to people in recovery, especially someone fresh into recovery. With that in mind we wanted to create a space to facilitate that safe environment, because we feel that if this kind of space existed for us, our mother or anyone else struggling with addiction it could by default help save lives.

Q: What special about HASH? A: Not only is HASH the first ever concept of it’s kind, we also focus on uplifting others, creators & performers. We work with amazing local vendors such as: TEANESSION (Latina owned organic teas) KUNG FU KITTY KAT CLUB (Black owned vegan cookie company) GLAMARIS CAKES (Latina owned dessert company) ELEMENT KOMBUCHA (SA’s first ever kombucha company owned by some amazing humans) ETHEREAL CULTURE (Latino owned clothing brand centered on latino culture. We also make our own VEGAN PHISH, CHIKN, CARNE GUIZADA, WAFFLES, BROWNIES & CBD BANANA BREAD.

Q: Who are you guys? A: Rogelio G Sanchez (Sober 8yrs Vegan 7yrs) Michael R Sanchez (Sober 8yrs Vegan 7yrs) (OWNERS OF HASH VEGAN EATS)

Exploring ancestral archives can be quite fascinating. For example, in the late 1580s my 10th great grandfather Juan Guerra de Reza married Ana de Arellano y Zaldivar, the granddaughter of Maria Onate Cortes Moctezuma and a prominent member of New Spain’s unofficial Aztec-Spanish royalty. De Reza came to the New World in his twenties and rose to the rank of General in his military service to the King of Spain. Maria Onate Cortes Moctezuma was the great granddaughter of Aztec Emperor Moctezuma II, and granddaughter of Hernan Cortes and Isabel Moctezuma.

General Juan Guerra de Reza came to America sometime after 1580. His countrymen, his future brother-in-laws, the Onates and Zaldivars were already engaged in the conquest of the Chichimecas in Jalisco and Zacatecas. His first marriage was to Ana de Arellano y Zaldivar, the daughter of Roque de Arellano and Ana de Zaldivar y Oñate. Ana’s mother was Maria de Oñate y Cortes Moctezuma. Upon seeing this marriage documented in Family Search, I was excited and intrigued. Did they have children? Was I connected to Aztec royalty? The answer to both questions, to my disappointment, was no.

I knew about General Guerra de Reza before I ordered my copy of Donald E. Chipman’s book, Moctezuma’s Children: Aztec Royalty Under Spanish Rule 1520-1700. From Chipman’s excellent account, I learned that Maria Onate Cortes Moctezuma was the wife of Vicente de Zaldivar Mendoza, a Maestro de Campo or Field General with Juan de Onate, Adelantado of New Mexico.

The Onates and Zaldivars were cousins, and the Zaldivars were related to Guerra de Reza through marriage. They were all from the same small Basque town in Spain, Vitoria. Two of the granddaughters of Hernan Cortes and Isabel Moctezuma, Leonor de Tolosa Cortes Moctezuma and Isabel de Tolosa Cortes Moctezuma, married into the Onate and Zaldivar families.

Vicente de Zaldivar Mendoza married his cousin Maria de Oñate Cortes, a daughter of Isabel de Tolosa Cortes Moctezuma. I did not realize that Guerra de Reza, who was related to my family, had a first wife with royal Aztec heritage. In addition, the wives of his two brothers-in-law had ancestral lineage to Moctezuma.

I dove into early New Mexico history and found that my 10th great grandfather, Juan Guerra de Reza, served as a Lieutenant under Juan de Onate in the colonization of New Mexico in the years 1598-1606. De Reza was born in 1560 and entered the territory of New Mexico in 1598 with Onate’s army, that consisted of 145 fighting men, which together with their wives, children and servants, comprised some 500 persons.

Guerra de Reza served in Onate’s expedition with Vicente de Zaldivar, his brother in law and Onate’s cousin. Zaldivar was Maestro de Campo, [Field General] in the battle against the Pueblo indigenous tribes. Not much is known about Guerra’s death in 1606, the year that Onate was replaced by the King in the province of New Mexico. Onate was required to answer charges of mismanagement. At the time of his death, de Reza was in his second marriage to my 10th great grandmother Magdalena de Zaldivar Onate Mendoza. As noted, her father, Vicente Zaldivar de Onate, was born in Vitoria, Basque Country, Spain and came to Mexico with the first generation of conquistadors.

Juan de Onate’s son Cristóbal de Oñate Cortés was a young boy when the Onates entered the province of New Mexico. Young Cristobal died in 1612 at age 22 in the Jornada Desert in New Mexico shortly after his family had relocated to Zacatecas. Juan de Onate and his wife Isabel de Tolosa Cortes Moctezuma also had a daughter, Maria de Oñate y Cortes. Maria married her cousin Capt. Vicente de Zaldivar Mendoza. They are considered among the founding Spanish families of New Mexico.

The first phase of the conquest of New Mexico by Juan de Onate did not go well. The Spaniards found no gold and the Indian resistance resulted in more than the small Spanish army could handle. Onate left in 1606. Those who followed him established Santa Fe in 1610, the oldest capital city in America.

Capt. Vicente de Zaldivar Mendoza and his wife Maria de Oñate y Cortes returned to Zacatecas after Onate left, and for a time de Zaldivar had a successful career in silver mining. Chipman noted in his book that Zaldivar Mendoza “saw his wealth disappear in astonishingly quick fashion.” During the early 1630s Zaldivar Mendoza lost all of his estates and died poor around 1636, the same year of his wife’s death. Chipman reported that Zaldivar Mendoza’s widow, Maria de Oñate y Cortes, faced abject poverty, “By some accounts, her sustenance depended on the sale of bedding straw from a vending cart in the streets of Zacatecas.”

Maria de Onate Cortes Moctezuma’s life story is interesting and part of my family history. Maria married Capt. Vicente de Zaldivar Mendoza, and their children included Ana de Zaldivar y Onate. In Ana’s brief marriage to my 10th great grandfather Guerra de Reza, they apparently had no heirs.

Growing up in the Westside of San Antonio, a community that is more than 90 percent Mexican-origin, I seldom thought about my ancestry. There were no questions in my mind about my identity—I was a Mexican American mestizo. While I was unable to trace my family to the Aztec empire, I know from historical documents that the Romo-Saenz lineage had Mestizaje from the start and had interesting family stories. I never imagined that my San Antonio family had connections to the founding families of New Mexico or to the Aztecs.

More research may well connect our mestizo families of New Spain [Mexico] with the founding of the New World and eventually America.

Dancer. Instructor. Choreographer. Photographer. Entrepreneur. Mother. Wife. Sister. Daughter. Role Model. Artista Nina Padilla is an all around Renaissance Mujer. With two degrees from Texas State University, one in Dance and one in Nutrition, our Reina on the Rise is the owner of Vignette Portrait Photography (focusing on contemporary portraits and personal branding) and Motion Arts Media, LLC, a full-service media local business, which centers on marketing, not only offering services in photography, but in videography, product photography, commercials, and social media marketing as well, including content creation and management of platforms, with both companies specializing in the performing arts. Though this is a new venture in her journey, Padilla is in no way new to the field. Her experience in choreography, set design, light design, scene design, and photography has more than prepared her for this time in her life...to work for herself con familia as a strong support system, while supporting local businesses, thus sustaining our local economy.

Many local business owners were impacted by Covid-19 in 2020. Unfortunately, artista Nina Padilla was no exception to this cruel rule. With her own successful portrait business catering to dance schools and companies at the time, the pandemic managed to cancel all events, consequently canceling Padilla’s opportunities for work. Ergo, our Reina fell into a place of depression, as many can relate to the whirlwind that we call 2020. However, where there are shadows, there is light, and Padilla found her lighting in her self-portraits project, which, according to her, “turned into a life saving self-love part of me that I needed to explore.” She had to reevaluate her situation and pivot. Adapting in 2020 is something we all became familiar with. And so, through her resilience, a brand new company, supporting local businesses and artists, *nacio. So, for all the artistas out there, *recuerdas, “We are adaptable. We are resilient. We will pivot. And that’s the amazing thing about being an artist,” hence, with Padilla’s passionate words, “Always speak your truth.” Your art will reflect who you are, Reinas.

On Thursday April 1, 2021 Marsha Mahaffey Owner and CEO of Jokesters 22 Pub N Grub located at 713 S Alamo SA, TX 78215 will be holding a huge celebration in honor of her 3-year anniversary. As she still has some small unpaid bills to catch up on after being forced to shut down twice in the last year and receiving little to no financial help, she had to make the fearful decision and figure out how to legally reopen her business. Aside from switching her license around several times and being the only person able to run her business, she had to make sure she made enough time to take care of herself and stay healthy in order to prevent getting COVID-19. On top of the many issues, she also struggled with the riots being down the street from her business and shortly after that the second shutdown occurred she did not think she would make it. Looking back now, she refers to her business as “The Little Engine that Could”. Marsha Mahaffey would like to inspire people with her story and bring back comedy to shed some laughs and light to people’s lives because it is time for everyone to blossom. This anniversary party is much more than a day but a story about a small-town San Antonio girl that fought for her dream. The best thing you can do when you go to her establishment is enjoy it! Please join her April 1st for 5k in raffles, live music, DJ’s, comedy, and a costume contest. She would like to invite 2 lucky winners to her VIP party which include free drinks, food, and a sneak peek of the weekend comedy show.
